

About HELPLINE

the workplace HELPLINE® was established in 1996 with the initial goal to help employers be better employers by answering their specific employment law questions, no matter where their organization was located across the United States.

The company's founders include a partner from a prestigious Boston law firm, the founding partners of one of the largest regional accounting and consulting firms in New England, a successful entrepreneur and a seasoned business consultant.

HELPLINE's expertise and vision have expanded over the years to now include:

- Patents in the United States, India and Australia – plus one pending in Canada – for their method, proprietary database and Web technology platform.
- HELPLINE connects employers with multiple areas of expertise, including attorneys, in-house client staff and risk management professionals, to answer and document responses to organizations' specific questions.
- Secure "real-time" data gathering and mining capabilities that keep a pulse on the rapidly changing workplace.

As an industry-leading employment law and human resource (HR) information company, HELPLINE has revolutionized the way that professional services are brought to the workplace. Through insurance, financial services, payroll and governmental channels, HELPLINE provides advice to thousands of employers nationwide. They range from the small- to medium-size firm in the private and public sectors to large organizations that have in-house legal and HR departments. HELPLINE's high-touch relationship-management approach seamlessly integrates human contact with cutting-edge technology and experienced professional expertise to answer and document responses to employers' specific questions.
